THE INSTITUTE

No farmer, dairyman, orchardist nor gardener of Clatsop county, who is in attendance upon the Farmers' Institute now in session in the city, can go back to his individual industry without an access of practical information that will be of direct advantage to him. The discussions have been of the most generous and general sort and wholly adapted to the specific needs of the men who are cultivating the soil of this county; there has been no limit upon the scope pressed with the interest and measure of the work done. It is a splendid and valuable accessory to the lines of production hereabout, and there can be no expression in time to come, by way of increased crops; the qualities, and quantities of produce, and the enhancethe county. The institut should be more frequent in its transpiring in this part of Oregon, and the grower should learn to rely upon efficacious and profitable possibilities, until all that is model and modern and applicable to the progress of Clatsop farms, orchards, gardens and dairies, shall have been absorbed and made part of the system of development in the producing world here-

"AROUSE, YE SLAVES!"

There are a good many things in the commercial life of the nation to in vite the concern, and protest, of those who are looking for an equal chance to live and prosper, and the encroachment of the multi-millionaire industrial potentate upon the vested rights of the individual and of the public, is becoming rank enough to invoke the operation of the law and of the ballot of reprisal; but there is nothing so threatening as to warrant men of the Eu gene V. Debs sort in doing the theatrical and nonsensical stunt lately played in the so-called "Appeal to Reason." a paper that debauched its title and purpose the instant it printed the screed under the above caption. Such emanations are dangerous to the peace of society and disturb the balances upon which the salvation of the working world depends for the maintenance of its just claim to universal consideration. There is more to be gained in the quiet, deliberate, formal, and equitable processes of the law and the ballot, than can ever be wrought by resort to vilification and concentrated hatred such as is evinced by Debs. The balance of power rests with the masses, but until they learn to use it with the discrimination and potency inseparable from great achievements, they will be handicapped by the successes obtained by ties against such removal, it seems to the invading rich who arrive at their be a fair inference that they have no victories by just such careful, re-erved, objections to the public's carrying away judicious and effective action as is here in its lungs all the minute particles of trouble is, the workingman does not realize his enormous potentiality in the conduct of human affairs; he trusts his cause to hands that are inimical and incapable; generally, to some political gamester, who is simply using him to expedite a private aim, and he has nothing by way of return save disappointment and defeat to dampen his aidor and reduce his prestige to a minimum. If all labor was organized and working along the wonderful and cogent program of the International Typographical Union. the results might be far more apparent. significant and satisfactory. The example is quoted merely to elucidate the practicality of the suggestions here made. The will of the masses, properly announced, comprehensively directed. and legally worked out, is simply in simpble, and the lesson will be learned some day, but not so long as confidence is put in such leaders and teachers as the socialist arbiter, Eugene V. Debs.

Woman, the Higher Education--and Marriage

By President L. CLARK SEELYE of Smith College, Northampton, Mass.

O determine how marriages and births are affected by a collegiate education there should be an extensive comparison BETWEEN COLLEGIATE AND NONCOLLEGIATE WOMEN in corresponding social and physical conditions.

What is still more important is to take into account the different social and physical condition of those thus educated. One must know from what classes they come and whether they were PHYS-ICALLY sound at their entrance to college.

Due credit should also be given to the abundant testimony that the majority of women improve physically as well as mentally during their college course.

Women's colleges take as pupils those who have suffered from hereditary ailments, from the requirements of fashion and from a low estimate of the dignity and capacity of womanhood. In spite of these drawbacks they have clearly demonstrated woman's physical and intellectual capacity for a collegiate education. Their graduates are better qualified FOR WIFEHOOD AND FOR MOTHERHOOD. They are as ready to wed as other women when the right man wooes them, but many causes now lead men in active life to postpone marriage, and the longer it is postponed the less inclined they are to assume its responsibilities.

Women cannot take the initiative and seek a husband, and daughters, in this country at least, are no longer contracted in marriage by

Marriages of convenience are not made as often by college graduates, for they do not feel OBLIGED TO MARRY in order to escape poverty or dependence, and they marry more frequently educated men who desire congenial companionship.

THERE ARE ACCORDINGLY FEWER DIVORCES AMONG THEM.

Their children are limited by the same causes which are dominant in the society to which they belong.

Excessive mentality may interfere with fecundity, but the fact is there is very little excessive mentality at present either in colleges for

Nor is the charge true that colleges for wemen are aping the colleges for men. In many customs and requirements they are duly mindful of the difference in sex and are giving woman advantages for PERFECTING WOMANHOOD which it would be difficult for her to find elsewhere.

The sexual differentiation desired should be secured by different modes of life rather than by DIFFERENT STUDIES.

A man does not become feminine by writing poetry nor a woman masculine by studying mathematics; and it would prove a serious defeet in the higher education of women if it were shaped merely with reference to a particular vocation. An UNDUE PROMINENCE to marriage and maternity may prove as permicious as if they were
